

As a long-haul Trucker, I really appreciate the format in which XM radio delivers traffic information. You see, local radio stations don't always give the numbers of the routes or landmarks that out-of-towners like myself would be looking for. Many times I'm lost by the traffic reports since I have no ideal where a specified landmark is.

For example, in Chicago they give a description like, "Traffic is jammed on Rt. 53 to the Post Office"

I don't know where the post office is, so that report doesn't give me the story that I need.

I can't understand why you would consider limiting a service that I pay for from a provider that I choose to do business with simply to protect a lobby that isn't improving it's service and many times, the radio personalities spend too much time blathering on about things I care nothing about.

Please don't limit the service that I'm able to buy from XM radio.

Jimmy Frost